DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-24 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-24 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goto (US 2004/0165766 A1). Goto discloses a method for forming and displaying an image comprising acquiring a volume image, reconstructed from a plurality of sectional slice images, from a medical image system such as an ultrasonic system (paragraph 0002, 0009). Goto processes the volume data to form multiple enhanced images each being based upon anatomic features such as bone, soft tissue or blood vessels (paragraph 0093, 0103). Goto goes through a counting process counting the number of pixels of a certain darkness along a transverse plane. Although Goto does not explicitly disclose this plan be a C-plane, it would be obvious that it would be a C-plane depending on in what direction you are imaging the slices. The number stored relates to the thickness of the anatomic feature at that view line (paragraph 0039-0041). To process this data Goto volume-renderers the image based upon setting a weighting coefficient for each anatomic feature. For example one of these coefficients can be a density value, such as a max density to render one of the images. As a different processing technique a min density can be used to render the image (paragraph 0053, 0090). Therefore to obtain each of the anatomic features requires a different threshold. The image could also be enhanced/rendered by the coefficient of the counting memories, which account for a depth/thickness of the organ of interest in the image portions. Any of the images that are created can be displayed simultaneously side by side (fig. 9A, paragraph 0104).

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. US 2004/0073112 A1 to Azuma and US 5,995,108 to Isobe.
